HRSA Awards $18.9 Million to Expand Use of Health Information Technology at Health Centers

HRSA Administrator Elizabeth M. Duke today announced almost $18.9 million in grants to health center-controlled networks and large multi-site health centers to adopt and implement Electronic Health Records (EHR) and other health information technology (HIT) innovations. EHRs are widely considered to be essential in improving the safety and quality of health care delivery and cutting waste and duplication of care.

“These funds continue our efforts to help health center grantees access and use the latest technology to improve the care they deliver,” HRSA Administrator Elizabeth M. Duke said. “Health information technology has the potential to transform care for underserved communities and its expansion is a priority for all Americans.”

Twelve grants totaling more than $14.3 million will support the implementation of EHRs. Grants worth almost $3.8 million will help 10 other grantees implement other HIT innovations, including electronic prescribing, health information exchanges, data warehouses, and interoperability with outside partners such as state immunization registries and hospitals. Another six grants totaling over $700,000 will support planning activities to prepare health centers to adopt an EHR or other HIT innovation.

HRSA’s Office of Health Information Technology, created in 2005, is charged with promoting HIT adoption and the effective use of HIT through grants and technical assistance that benefits safety-net providers and responds to the needs of the uninsured, underserved and special-needs populations. HRSA’s effort supports the broader federal strategic goal of improving the quality and efficiency of health care by expanding the use EHRs among most Americans by 2014.
